Perry County ASC Committee Has Major Soil Conservation Problems

The Perry County ASC Committee asks: "What would your organization like to know about our farm programs in this county?"

"We have major soil and grain instead of paying commercial storage operators to store the grain surplus. Perry County has 843 feed grain farms eligible to participate in the Conservation program. In doing this, they spent $5,000.00 of their own money and $17,617.00 of public money for the benefit of the public. Protected and improved soil and water resources add up to better living and better business in a better community."

"Because of burdensome supplies, approximately 20% of the 1963 burley tobacco crop in Perry County was placed with the Burley Tobacco Coop, an agency which, by the use of Government funds, stabilizes tobacco prices received by farmers. Without such support, income to tobacco growers might easily have been one-half of the actual amount received."

"When Feed Grain supplies became burdensome, the government came out with the Feed-Grain program providing direct payments to participating farmers for not producing their pro rata share. Economists tell us that money entering the channels of trade increases five fold before it gets through all the business channels. We feel that Perry County cannot afford the loss of these funds. Can you help us increase our farmer participation?"

"Since farm programs bear directly on farm prosperity, they relate directly to the day-to-day business life and economy of Perry County. As farm income improves, farmers buy more feed, farm machinery, transportation items, pesticides and soil minerals, materials for repair and operation of buildings and new construction, and food, clothing, household furnishing and equipment."

"Do you know that we do business with nearly all the farmers in the county and have

"In the 1963 calendar year the Perry County ASC committee returned $11,000.00 of its ACP Cost Share funds to the government because the farmers in Perry County did not sign up to participate in the various program practices available to them. This money went to other counties in the State that had earned more than

"Let us know what you'd like to know about our program. We are in position to offer you a short talk of one or more of these subjects."

Cindy's Floral Beauty Is Big Success In Hazard June 9th

Cindy's Floral Beauty, presented by Mrs. Rolland L. Fifer, Louisville, noted Flower Arranger and lecturer was well received by guests attending the show on Tuesday evening, June 9th at the Roy G. Eversole.

The event, sponsored by the Perry County Garden Club and Mountain View Garden Club using strong simple lines in a was attended by visitors, not triangular design with strong only from Hazard but Jackson color contrast. The Early American surrounding communities. Introduced by Mrs. Gene Combs, president of The Garden Club of Kentucky, Inc., Mrs. Fifer stated that she would like to give the history of flower arranging from its period. Some were fan-shaped, very beginning before starting some rectangular.

The Georgian 18th century she defined the subject as the art of organizing the elements according to principles of design, to obtain beauty, harmony, simplicity and expression. Beauty, she said adds appeal to the eyes of the beholder, is hard to define and hard to find. It is good taste, is suitable and appropriate. We have learned from the Japanese their beautiful line.

Simplicity is the elimination of all unnecessary details. It is the quality found in an arrangement where nothing essential is omitted, and nothing included to detract from its design.

Expression is the creative quality which reveals to the observer an idea, feeling, mood or story, and shows the spirit of one's self in arranging. Harmony, is the interrelationship of parts, which include principles, balance, dominance, contrast, rhythm, proportion and scale.

Mrs. Fifer stated that from the 6th through the 15th centuries the priests and nobility of the Japanese used arrangements and the people themselves studied the art. The classical Greek styles were simple and symmetrical of form with garlands and swags.

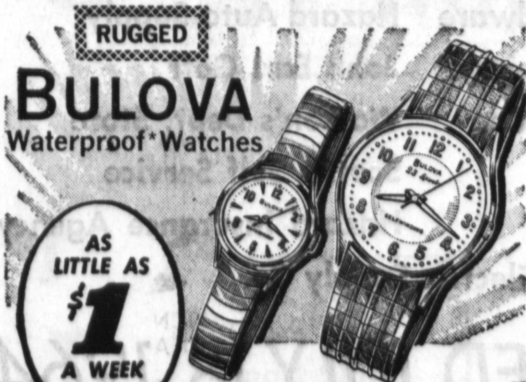

The Renaissance period used full and warm colors, accented by cool prevailing richness. In the 17th and 18th centuries flower grouping took on an oval form. The French period was of the bouquet sort with little thought to design and stressing more height than width, with little emphasis on grouping or center of interest.

Mrs. Rolland L. Fifer

She further added that Roger Fry in his book "Vision and Design" said that "no artist can live by the impressions once vivid in the eyes of a dead generation". How true this is she added, why should we want to when we live in a wonderful age with so much to inspire us to do something new.

Flowers from Engle Florist and Brashear Flower Shop, and the gardens of Mrs. Frank Medaris, Mrs. Lee Crutchfield, Mrs. Chalmer Lindon, Mrs. L. H. Wagers, Mrs. Gene Combs and Mrs. W. W. Reeves were used during the evening.
